1. Words of Welcome

Welcome to BRIT XII-2012 Fukuoka (Japan) / Busan (Korea):
The XII International Scientific Meeting on Border Regions in Transition (BRIT) &
The First BRIT in East Asia

Eurasia and East Asia has long been a “vacuum” in the international border studies community, with the current renaissance in border studies being fashioned mainly in the Americas and Europe. Hokkaido University’s Slavic Research Center, a world-renowned center for Eurasian studies, and the Global COE (Center of Excellence) Program “Reshaping Japan’s Border Studies,” aim to fill this “gap.” After months of preparation, and in collaboration with Kyushu University and Dongseo University, we have finally succeeded in organizing the twelfth Scientific Meeting on Border Regions in Transition (BRIT) that originated in Europe, and will succeed in holding the Conference in one of the most dynamic border regions in East Asia - namely the Fukuoka-Busan area.

The main conference and related satellite meetings are fully supported by the local administrations in Fukuoka, Tsushima and Busan, by the newly established border studies network - Japan International Border Studies Network (JIBSN), and by several related academic associations and projects such as the Japan Society of Island Studies and, internationally, the Association for Borderlands Studies (ABS). Thanks to the endeavors of all the concerned parties, the BRIT XII scientific meeting has gained momentum and attracted around two hundred participants from nearly forty countries. The Fukuoka-Busan venue will serve as a forum for researchers to learn about unknown borderland realities beyond their usual frame of reference. Japan and Korea, on the east edge of the Eurasian continent, represent an especially relevant place for discussing both land and sea border related issues.

Against the geopolitical background of a rapidly changing Eurasia, the theme of the meeting was set as “Borderland Voices: Shaping a New World Order.” Researchers address this theme by examining how people living in the borderlands have negotiated the process of being “bordered” by the state and central authority; the unique relations of these borderland communities with neighboring powers; and the strategies and initiatives that people on the borderlands have devised to overcome the challenges of daily life living on the border. Views from the borderlands give new insights into the dynamic relationship between state and society; center and periphery; security and insecurity; politics and territory; identity and belonging. The theme of BRIT XII comes as a timely reminder that it is border communities (often marginal, overlooked and powerless) who are most sharply affected by the global shifts represented by the terms “de-bordering” and “re-bordering.” For borderland communities the power, violence and connectivity of the border are part of the very fabric of daily life. The border really matters to those living on it and border studies can metaphorically and geographically give a voice to those people living on the margins. It is a scholarly engagement that has a humanitarian significance beyond the boundaries of academia.

In addition to presenting case studies on Eurasia and East Asia, BRIT XII offers opportunities to use multiple lenses (from local to global) as well as cross-disciplinary approaches to refocus on the border in a new and innovative manner. Border studies itself has yet to fully mature and needs a solid foundation to integrate fragmented regional facts. The urgent task at hand is to find and identify theoretical tools in order to compare various approaches and expertise across regions. Without this process, border studies, though endowed with rich and suggestive materials, will not be able to make a fruitful contribution as an interdisciplinary and multi-vectored field of research. The first and final plenary will debate on these conceptual innovations and provide the general context for BRIT XII.

With your cooperation and participation, the first East Asian BRIT is to be a historic event, making border studies a truly global discipline. We would like to express our sincere gratitude to all BRIT participants here in Fukuoka and Busan. Thank you for coming and we hope you enjoy the conference as well as take this great opportunity to experience the various local activities around the BRIT XII.

Sincerely,
Akihiro Iwashita

3. A Short History of BRIT

The location of the first BRIT meeting reflected the rapid and remarkable changes in borders in Eastern Europe in the early 1990s. This inaugural meeting was titled “Borders and Border Regions: New Roles in a Changing Global Context,” and was organized by:

- The Institute for Regional Studies of the Californias (IRSC) at San Diego State University
- The Institute of Regional Development and Structural Planning (IRS) in Erkner near Berlin
- The Science Center for Social Research (WZB) in Berlin
- The Institut des Etudes Politiques (IEP) in Paris

James Scott, Paul Ganster, Alan Sweedler (San Diego State University), Wolf-Dieter Eberwein, Didier Bigot, and others all helped with the organization of the meeting, with Wolf-Dieter and especially James doing much of the work on constructing the program and working out the local arrangements for the complex international meetings.

The spirit and complexities of this first meeting have been sustained until today while debates on border studies have been brought to new places. For the first time, BRIT has come to East Asia and the cooperation between Japan and Korea builds on BRIT’s rich tradition of transcending borders. Previous BRIT meetings are:

I. The German-Polish Border, June 1994
II. The Russian-Finnish Border, July 1997
III. The U.S.-Mexican Border, January 1999
IV. The Indo-Pakistan Border, February 2000
V. The Estonian-Russian Border, June 2001
VI. Hungary and Borders with Croatia, Serbia, Romania, and Ukraine, September 2003
VII. The Israeli-Palestinian Border, January 2005
VIII. The Polish-Ukrainian Border, September 2006
IX. The Canada-U.S. Border, January 2008
X. The Chile-Peru Border, January 2009
XI. The French-Swiss Border, September 2011

Sumo (相撲), Japan’s national sport, is said to have originated in contests of strength between gods recorded in the ancient history called the Kojiki (古事記), and since antiquity has spread as a Shintō (神道) ritual. Its bouts have been popular since the Edo (江戸) period, and remain so today.

Wrestlers’ rank and order are established by and published on official lists called banzuke (番付, as shown on the left), with the highest-ranking wrestler called the yokozuna (横綱) in the top division called makuuchi (幕内) being praised as a man of dignity as well as strength.

The key tournaments are held six times a year (Tokyo: Jan, May&Sept; Osaka: Mar; Nagoya: Jul; Fukuoka: Nov). Each match lasts fifteen days, and they decide the banzuke ranking within each class of wrestlers.

Sumo characters & useful vocabulary:

- Yobidashi: Usher
- Gyoji: Sumo referee
- Rikishi: A sumo wrestler
- Shikona: A rikishi’s professional name
- Mage: A topknot
- Keshō-Mawashi: A decorative mawashi with an embroidered, apron-like front.
- Dohyō: The sumo ring, a packed earth circle used for no other sport, 4.55 meters (around 14 feet) in diameter.
- Torikumi: Sumo Battle
- Kiyome no shio: Salt is used to purify the dohyō and pray for a safe match.
- Shiko wo fumu: The shiko is a key gesture in sumo. When a rikishi enters the ring, he stands with his legs apart and knees bent. One after another, he lifts a leg high, claps his hand to his knee, and stomps the ground with all his might. This is called "stomping (fumu) the shiko." This action drives out evil.
- Shikiri: The two rikishi face each other at the centre of the ring, fists planted on the ground, in preparation for the match.
- Tachiai: After a repeat shikiri, the rikishi meet each other’s eyes, then leap up and collide.
- Gappuri Yotsu: A position in which rikishi are chest-to-chest with a tight two-handed grip on the other’s mawashi.
- Kimari-Te: The winning move, causing the opponent to touch the ring with anything besides the bottom of his feet, or to be moved outside of the ring.

Plot Summary:
The story begins in 1590, as María, the daughter of a Christian daimyo (feudal lord), Konishi Yukinaga, comes to Tsushima to marry Soh Yoshitoshi, the 19th feudal lord of the Tsushima domain. The marriage is a very happy occasion for the island. However, the marriage is planned as a political maneuver by Toyotomi Hideyoshi, whom Konishi trusted, in preparation for the conquest of Ming China.

In 1592, Hideyoshi commands all feudal lords in Japan to send their troops to Korea. Samurai generals such as Kato Kiyomasa and Fukushima Masanori commit all kinds of atrocities during the invasion of Korea. Even though Tsushima’s soldiers are ordered to be vanguards of the invasion, they try to find a way to make peace. The battles of Bunroku and Keicho last six years and the war ends shortly after Hideyoshi’s death. However, the war leaves much unrest in Japan. In 1600, the Battle of Sekigahara, also known as the Battle for the Sundered Realm, begins. The eastern army is led by Tokugawa Ieyasu, and the western army is led by Ishida Mitsunari. Since Tsushima and Konishi’s dominions are related by marriage, they fight on the side of the western army. Nevertheless, the war ends with a great victory for the eastern army, and Ieyasu establishes the Tokugawa shogunate. In contrast to Hideyoshi, the Tokugawa shogunate drastically change their policy and seek “peace” with Korea – a development of great consequence to Tsushima. The dominion’s fate hinges on making peace with Korea. Since Tsushima betrayed Korea once, it is hard for Korea to trust the dominion again. Tsushima sends its able vassals to Korea one after another as messengers but to no avail. Finally, Tsushima decides to alter the sovereign letter written by the Tokugawa shogun to negotiate and restore diplomatic relations with Korea. “The island will rule itself”. This seems to be the only way for Tsushima to survive.

The domain’s efforts are rewarded in 1607 when it welcomes the Korean king’s envoys to Tsushima. The large procession consists of 467 members. Tsushima’s intervention and hospitality for the Korean envoys establishes the foundation for friendship between the two nations. This history is indispensable when discussing Tsushima and is a crucial part of Japanese history.

This musical will allow you to experience this turbulent era in the history of Tsushima. The play is performed by the Tsushima municipal theater troupe, with the cooperation of a local choir, Japanese dance troupe, and Japanese drum group.

For those who also attend the Sumo Spectating: Our staff will take you to the Meeting Point after the Sumo will finish at 18:00.

For those who are NOT attending the Sumo Spectating: Please come to the Meeting Point on your own at 18:00!

The Meeting Point is located around the Bus Stop “Hakata-Futo Iriguchi (Wharf)”.
9. Tsushima Field Trip: 15 (Thur) November

Tsushima Island is among the most “peaceful” maritime border regions of Japan. This island is located 49.5 km southeast of Busan and 130 km northwest of Fukuoka. Through this field trip and a talk given by the Mayor of Tsushima City, Mr. Yasunari TAKARABE, participants of BRIT XII 2012 Fukuoka/Busan will have a great opportunity to experience the reality of the maritime border between Japan and Korea. Below are the details and itinerary regarding our Tsushima Field Trip.

Participants of the field trip should be at the waiting lounge of the Hakata Pier (Hakata Futo) Terminal 1 “Bayside Place Hakata” at 7:30 AM.

We first travel by water on a jetfoil “Beetle” from Port Hakata to Port Izuhara, located in the southern part of Tsushima Island, and go northward by bus to Port Hitakatsu in the north-eastern edge of Tsushima. At Port Hitakatsu we will go through passport control and again travel by water on the same jetfoil to the hyper-modernized Port of Busan, the southern maritime gateway of Korea.

This moderated round table, with some of the most prominent border scholars from around the world, will evaluate 100 years of border studies, with particular emphasis on developments over the last three decades; the current state of border studies; and the steps necessary to take this multidisciplinary field to the next stage. The purpose of the panel is to draw out some of the most important empirical and theoretical lessons from our past and evaluate the relevancy of the border studies community for understanding a world where borders are being constructed even as globalization proceeds apace. This roundtable explores some of the difficulties that border scholars confront in carrying out empirical research, building theory, and developing relevance in public policy, as well as strategies to move the field forward in relation to the complicated reality of both material and immaterial borders.

Closing Plenary “Where are we heading to?”

Moderator: Emmanuel Brunet-Jailly (University of Victoria, Canada)

Keynote Speech: Henk van Houtum (Radboud University Nijmegen, Netherlands)

Panelists:
- Mushtaq Kaw (University of Kashmir, India)
- Christopher Len (Institute for Security and Development Policy, Sweden)
- Decha Tangseefa (Thammasat University, Thailand)
- Ilkka Liikanen (University of Eastern Finland, Finland)
- David Newman (Ben-Gurion University, Israel)

The last panel – will engage key theoretical works from Eastern and Western traditions - We asked prominent scholars to address those two themes:

First, to sum up what they think is critical to border studies today, what field is leading the research and where this is taking border scholars and why. Specifically, how do they approach theoretical works from the perspective of their local expertise on border issues and studies? Specifically the Kashmir and Himalayan studies; China’s behaviors on the border issues (Inland on Central Asia and Maritime on South and East China seas, And comparative research on the Inland borders and Maritime borders); River border issues, including environmental, border crossing realities on Southeast Asia; and finally, in Europe, the Finnish/ Russian Karelian region, and Israel/Palestine.

Second, we asked them to reflect on the program and possibly to identify new ideas and new really interesting research – and while at the conference to make mental notes of those new ideas. In particular, are we matching up the theory and practice in Europe and North American with Eurasian realities? Indeed we have little theoretical works on border issues and so many case studies, and have yet to integrate both in Europe, Eurasia and Asia practice and theory. Then, the question is: does the European theoretical propositions really work in Eurasia, and vice versa? We asked "What do you think Eurasian scholars think about the theoretical works of European/North American colleagues in terms of its transferability and usefulness to explain/predict border issues / resolve conflicts?"
11. General Information

(1) Registration
The Conference Registration Desks for the Fukuoka session are located in the 5\textsuperscript{th}-floor lobby of the Fukuoka International Congress Center. You can pick up the conference bag and name badge at the Conference Registration Desk. For registration or any administrative issues please enquire at the Conference Registration Desks. Please check the message board by the Registration Desks regularly for news and announcements.

(2) Badge
Your name badge, issued to you when you register, must be worn to all conference sessions and social events for identification and security purpose. The holder of the badge includes tickets of lunch, banquet in Fukuoka and cultural programs if you reserved during the prior online registration.

(3) Presentation & Language
Plan to arrive in the room at least 15-20 minutes before the beginning of the session. Oral presentation slots will be strictly limited to 15 minutes. There will be a Q&A session at the end of each session so please hold on to any questions you may have until then. At the discretion of the moderator, presentation time and Q&A time may be changed.

Presentation material must be made in English, using Microsoft PowerPoint 2007/2010 or Adobe PDF if you are using our PCs pre-installed at the conference site. You may use your personal laptop as long as it has a VGA 15 pins socket video connector compatible with the projector format resolution.

The official language of BRIT XII-2012 is English. For certain presentations such as the two “Japan Special Sessions”, simultaneous interpretation of Japanese and English will be provided.

(4) Internet Access
Free Wireless Internet access will be provided on the 5th floor of the Fukuoka International Congress Center.

(5) Electricity in Japan and Korea
The voltage used throughout Japan is uniformly 100V. There are two kinds of frequencies in use; 50 Hertz in eastern Japan and 60 Hertz in western Japan including Fukuoka. There are no columnar-shaped plugs or 3-pin plugs used in Japan but 2-flat-pin plugs are used instead. The plug type is A or B. It is therefore advised to purchase a plug adapter beforehand.

The standard voltage in Korea is 220V. The outlet has two round holes and is the same type used in France, Germany, Austria, Greece, Turkey, and many other countries. The typical plug type is C or E/F. However, in Toyoko-inn Busan Station 2, there is also the same type of outlet as in Japan. Therefore, guests can use the plug type A or B in Toyoko-inn Busan Station 2.

(6) Foreign Currency Exchange
There are couple of foreign currency exchange kiosks in Fukuoka and Busan. You may exchange your money at the airport and the port of Busan. There are also many ATMs near the hotels and the conference venues both in Fukuoka and Busan.
(7) Climate
During November in Fukuoka, daily highs decrease from roughly 15°C to 10°C over the course of the month. However, occasionally, daily highs can exceed 20°C or drop below 5°C. Daily lows generally range from 6°C to 12°C, but have been known to drop to 3°C or even exceed 16°C. The temperature difference between day and night is large and therefore a warm jacket or coat may be necessary.

In Tsushima and Busan, it will be a little colder than in Fukuoka. It is better to bring a coat, because the night temperature in the evenings may be low.

(8) Insurance & Illness
Registration fees do not include personal, travel or medical insurance of any kind. Delegates are advised when registering for the conference and booking travel that a travel insurance policy should be taken out to cover risks including (but not limited to) loss, cancellation, medical costs and injury. BRIT-XII 2012 and/or the conference organizers will not accept any responsibility for any delegate failing to insure.

In case you become sick or are injured during the conference, please come to the Registration Desks or ask our staff for help if you feel you need it.
